

Deliverable 5 – Plan for Iteration MVP 2

Based on our customer meeting, we will be implementing a few of the changes that were suggested by our customers. The first is that we will be increasing the maximum number of books a single user can post from ten to twenty. We created the post limit to avoid clogging or abuse of the app, but the customers felt that twenty would be a more reasonable number since quite a few classes require more than one book.

We will also be making the phone number input optional for users when they sign up. We decided to make this change since it was pointed out that many people may not feel comfortable having their phone number online for anyone to see. However, we decided to keep the email available since people would still need some way to contact sellers about purchasing books or negotiating prices.

In addition to these changes, we will be adding a liability waiver, a terms and conditions, and a search by book title option. At first we were planning on just organizing the books by subject, but the customer feedback showed us that search by book title is essential to the app, since there may be hundreds or even thousands of books for certain subjects. The liability waiver and terms & conditions are being added because our app involves people having to meet up in person, and the customers felt it would be smart to add a terms in conditions in case anything were to happen. We also do not want to be liable for people who may not follow through with sales.

A change that we considered but decided not to implement was having recommendations for pricing or removing books that are priced too high. While we understand why the customer suggested this, we decided that if someone were to list books for high prices or for more than they bought them for originally, customers just wouldn't buy those listings and that would likely force the seller to lower their price to a fair one.
